PUBLIC PARTICIPATION ON NYAMIRA COUNTY ANNUAL DEVELOPMENT (CADP) REPORT

1.1 Introduction to County Annual Development (CADP)

Nowadays, participation has become a key element in development matters. The awareness that individuals are responsible for managing and benefiting from the available resources has increased throughout time. The Aarhus Convention of 1998 states that citizens not only need to have access to information but also have the right to participate in decision-making and be included in programs/ issues across board .As in Kenya, public participation is a constitutional requirement under article 69 (1) of the Constitution and Part VIII Section 87-92 and 115 of the County Government Act, 2012 and Part 2 section 6 (1) a-e, 2(1) of Public Participation Bill, 2020 (GoK, 2017; GoK, 2020).

As indicated above the County government of Nyamira through the Department of Finance, ICT and Economic Planning held Public Participation sessions on the County Annual Development Plan 2025/2026.The exercise was conducted successfully across the 20 (Twenty Wards) and was overseen by CCO Finance, CT and Economic Planning Dr. Asenath Maobe, Deputy , Finance, CT and Economic Planning Mr. Mutinda, Director Civic Education and Public Participation Mr. Dan Onyancha and Joash Onyonka Director Corporate Communication and Public Relations both from the department of Public Service Management (PSM).

The Annual Development Plan 2025/2026 is the third year implementation of the current CIDP. The Annual Development Plan (ADP) sets out the county's annual development priorities for the forthcoming year. It represents the annual implementation plan for what was approved in the CIDP and is based on implementation progress and experience captured in Quarterly Progress Reports (QPRs) and the Annual Progress Report (APR). As known ADP is the first step of budget making process. Priorities were drawn from the CIDP, sector inputs as well as public participation forums.

The County Governments Act, 2012 and the Public Finance Management Act (PFMA), 2012 stipulate that development plans should form the basis for appropriation of public funds. Section 105 of the CGA, 2012 emphasizes the need for linkages between county plans and national planning frameworks. As per the County Governments Act section 108, county governments are required to prepare County Integrated Development Plans (CIDP) that are implemented through Annual Development Plans and Medium Term Expenditure Framework (MTEF).

The Annual Development Plan therefore provides a platform for linking county development priorities in the CIDP to county annual budget. This is meant to enhance prudent allocation of resources as envisaged in the PFMA. Further, it is meant to ensure that appropriation of county resources is done within the planning framework. The Annual Development Plans also help in monitoring and evaluation of county programmes and projects; thus enabling counties to demonstrate their development results.

The Constitution of Kenya created a two-tier system of governance, national government and 47 county governments that require a paradigm shift in development planning. Article 220(2) (a) of the Constitution states that “national legislation shall prescribe the structure of development plans and budgets.” Sections 104, 105 and 108 of the County Government Act, 2012 provides that County Governments are responsible for: preparing integrated development plans; ensuring integrated planning within the county; ensuring linkages between county plans and the national planning framework; ensuring meaningful engagement of citizens in planning process; ensuring the collection, collation, storage and updating of data and information suitable for the planning processes; and ensuring that no public funds shall be appropriated outside a planning framework.

Public Finance Management Act (PFMA), 2012 outlines the county planning framework which provides for the preparation of various plans and among them the Annual Development Plans (ADPs). The ADP provides the basis for implementing the CIDP and guiding resource allocation to priority projects and programmes. Further, Section 126 of the PFMA, 2012 requires county governments to prepare a development plan in accordance with Article 220 (2) of the Constitution, which should be submitted for approval to the county assembly not later than 1st September of each year. The ADP should outline among others: the strategic priorities for the medium term that reflect the county government's priorities and plans; county programmes and projects to be delivered; measurable indicators of performance where feasible; and the budget allocated to the programmes and projects.

1.2 Rationale for Public Participation

Public participation is the engagement in governance whereby “people participate together for deliberation and collective action within an array of interests, institutions and networks, developing civic identity, and involving people in governance processes”. The importance of public participation cannot be understated. Its contribution in anchoring democracy is significant as it ensures inclusivity and transparency in governance, as citizens and government agencies share power among themselves. It ensures government responsiveness to citizen needs and increases the legitimacy of government's decisions and institutions. Further, at the individual level, public participation increases patriotism, trust in public institutions, self-development, and commitment to the public good. This in turn increases social inclusiveness and social capital.

The main goals of public participation are to inform, engage, consult, collaborate and empower the citizenry. This occurs in different ways and environments, such as government, electoral, or civil society. However, the culture in public bureaucracy is not supportive of public participation, but leans on standard information exchange channels such as public hearing, which most of the times is one way and not oriented to problem solving, thus a there is need for transforming such culture and ensure that citizens are partners and not just clients in governance through meaningful public participation.

Public participation in the integrated development planning (IDP) process is regarded as instrumental to promote partnerships between local government and communities in addressing local development priorities and concerns. The County Government Act Sections 94 and 95 provide that counties are to establish mechanisms to facilitate public communication and access to information with the widest public outreach using media.

By participating in public affairs, citizens and stakeholders can influence decisions, policies, and legislation and provide oversight for service delivery, development and governance. Public participation in all levels of government is one of the transformative features of the 2010 Constitution. Public participation is listed as a national value and principle of governance in Article 10. Likewise, Articles 35, 33, and 34 provide a right to access information held by the state and freedom to seek, receive, and impart information and a free press.

The desire to adopt participatory approaches stems from a perceived paradigm shift in development that supports participation as a means to advance development. Promoters of participatory approaches observe that the traditional top-down management style is inefficient, corrupt, and exploitative of the poor and the marginalized as opined by World Bank. Participation is therefore a means to meet locally felt needs, redistributing scarce resources, empowering the poor and marginalized by enhancing local management capacity, increasing trust and raising collective consciousness of participants. In this regard, the people-centred participation is closely related to the concept of “strong” participation, as initially promoted by World Bank. From these perspectives, the people-centered participation is seen as a way of substituting empowerment to enable the disempowered and the excluded to make their own decisions. As a result, participation is presented as a feasible response to these challenges.

Public participation is a constitutional requirement specifically; Article 1 that states that sovereign power belongs to the people and Article 10 (2) (a) and the Fourth Schedule Part 2 (14) of the Constitution of Kenya and is stipulated as a function of the County Government. Sections 87 to 92 and 115 of the County Governments Act, 2012 outline the principles of public participation and the imperative for facilitating public participation in the work of the County government. Public participation is a structured way of consulting with persons, groups and entities before decisions are made. It is designed to give a voice to the voiceless and cements the concept of agency to the County Government, that is, the County government becomes an agent of the people. Public participation is not meant to convey decisions already made, but to generate and confirm decisions. It is not a political process but a non-partisan process that involves the agent going to ‘take instruction and direction’ from the people.

The preamble to the Constitution of Kenya 2010 starts with the empowering words, “We the People.” Article 1 of this document enshrines the principle that all sovereign power belongs to the people of Kenya. This is not just a statement; it is a foundational element of governance that asserts the necessity for genuine public participation in all matters of national importance. The recent protests by the youth against the Finance Bill serve as a reminder of this principle and the critical need for the government to listen and respond to its citizens.

Public participation is the foundation of democracy. It allows citizens to voice their concerns, contribute to decision-making processes, and hold their leaders accountable. Effective public participation ensures that policies reflect the will and needs of the people, fostering a more inclusive and equitable society. The Constitution of Kenya 2010 places a strong emphasis on public participation, with Article 10 listing it as a national value and principle of governance.

To be effective, public participation must be more than just a formality. It should involve proactive engagement with citizens, transparent dissemination of information, and genuine incorporation of public input into decision-making processes. This requires government officials to create accessible platforms for dialogue, solicit feedback on proposed legislation, and demonstrate a willingness to adapt policies based on citizen input.

Additionally, international conventions and treaties signed by Kenya stress the significance of public participation. The International Covenant on Civil and Political Rights (ICCPR) and the African Charter on Human and Peoples' Rights (ACHPR) affirm citizen's right to engage in public affairs. These agreements collectively mandate that governance must integrate public participation to ensure policies and decisions reflect the people's will.

Despite strong legal frameworks, achieving effective public participation in Kenya faces challenges, limited awareness, inadequate access to information, and insufficient mechanisms to incorporate public feedback into policy decisions. Logistical barriers like geographical constraints and digital divides also hinder broad participation, especially among marginalized and rural communities.

The government should prioritize raising awareness of participation rights, enhancing transparency in its processes, ensuring information accessibility across different formats and languages, and expanding digital platforms while effectively bridging the digital divide.

The principle of “We the People” enshrined in the Kenyan Constitution must be realized through active and effective public participation. This requires a paradigm shift in how public engagement is approached by both the government and citizens. The government must be proactive in soliciting and valuing public input, while citizens must be informed and willing to engage in governance processes.

Recent events demonstrate that public participation is not merely a procedural formality but a vital component of a functioning democracy. By ensuring that the voices of all Kenyans are heard and considered in policy-making, then we can move towards a more inclusive, equitable, and responsive governance system. The youth protests against the Finance Bill are a powerful reminder of the need for continual engagement and the essential role that public participation plays in the democratic process.

In conclusion, “We the People” is a call to action for both the government and citizens of Kenya. To uphold the Constitution, public participation must be embraced as a fundamental part of democratic governance. Only through genuine and inclusive participation can Kenya truly reflect the will and aspirations of its people.

As discussed above the county government of Nyamira at all times seeks to utilize the various levels of participation, that is, the government is committed to the promotion of consultation, satisfaction, and partnership of its citizen in participation. The County government endeavours to promote and ensure people-centred and people-driven development as anticipated by the constitution. The government promises to continuously strive to create an enabling environment for citizens to be involved in and participate in the development of policies from the initial stages.

The commitment to this fact is the establishment of a fully-fledged directorate of civic education and public participation that undertakes and coordinates county programs across all areas and wards. In effect the county government has adopted the following forms of public participation:

- ✓ Informing the public by providing information to help them understand the issues, options and solutions;
- ✓ Consulting with the public to obtain their feedback on alternatives or decisions;
- ✓ Involving the public to ensure their concerns are considered throughout the decision making process particularly in the development of decision criteria and options;

- ✓ Collaborating with the public to develop decision criteria and alternatives and identify the preferred solutions; and
- ✓ Empowering the public by placing final decision making authority in their hands.

1.2.1 Public Participation Process and Methodology

The Nyamira County Annual Development plan public participation was conducted on Thursday 22nd to Friday 23rd August, 2024 across all the 20 wards of Nyamira County. County officers from planning, budget, public participation, communication administrators and some officers from county departments were involved in the public participation exercise.

Identification, mapping and mobilization of the crucial stakeholders were done through the Sub-County and Ward Administrators. Techniques used were presentation, group discussions and plenary discussions. The facilitators ensured that there was clarity of subject matter, inclusivity and effective representation, climate of integrity and provision of opportunity for balanced influence and ensured commitment to the process. At the end of the exercise communication and Public Participation officers at the 20 wards compiled reports that were finally collapsed into one document for onward transmission to the department of Finance, ICT and Economic Planning.

1.3 Closing Session

Tom Ogita thanked members of the public for showing up and expressing their views and challenges. There was a prayer from Robert Nyandoro as the meeting was closed at 01.46 p.m

1.4 Observations, Challenges and Recommendations

1.4.1 Observations

The rehabilitation of the Endemu dam is an urgent issue that needs to be addressed fast because it seems it's the most emotive issue that arose during the exercise.

1.4.2 Challenges

The exercise needs to start off early to enable the public go around other activities and provision of enough ADP documentations.

1.4.3 Recommendations

The public input should be taken seriously because there is allegation that they are always short changed when it comes to distribution of development projects.

1.3 Closing Session

The Exercise ended at 2Pm with the Closing remarks from the Ward admin Mr.Nathan Kabora who thanked Members of the Public for attending the session.Mr Francis Onsongo one of the members of the Public

1.4 Observations, Challenges, and Recommendations

1.4.1 Observations

In analyzing the recent public participation exercise, it became apparent that there was a significant gap in communication and outreach. A key observation was the limited reach of the public notice, which was primarily disseminated through newspapers. This method proved insufficient as it failed to engage a large segment of the population who either do not read the newspaper regularly or lack access to it. Additionally, there was a noticeable lack of awareness among community members about the event, which was reflected in the low turnout.

The role of communication officers in bridging this gap was also observed to be hampered by inadequate resources. The officers did not have access to data bundles or airtime, which are essential for updating and engaging with the community effectively. This lack of resources significantly impacted the efficiency of communication and feedback collection during the exercise.

1.4.2 Challenges

The challenges observed during the public participation exercise were multifaceted:

- Limited Public Awareness: Many community members were not aware of the public participation exercise due to the reliance on newspaper advertisements. This method failed to reach a broader audience, leading to poor attendance and engagement.
- Inadequate Communication Resources: Communication officers were not provided with data bundles or airtime. This lack of resources hindered their ability to communicate updates and gather real-time feedback from the public, impacting the overall effectiveness of the exercise.
- Inefficient Notification Methods: The current approach to notifying the public was insufficient. Relying solely on newspaper ads did not accommodate those who may not have regular access to newspapers or who is not reached by this method.

1.4.3 Recommendations

To address the observed issues and improve future public participation exercises, the following recommendations are suggested:

- Enhanced Communication Support for Officers: Communication officers should be equipped with necessary resources such as data bundles and airtime. This support will enable them to provide timely updates, gather feedback more effectively, and engage with the community in real-time, thereby improving the overall communication process.

- Broader and More Inclusive Notification Methods: To increase public awareness and participation, it is recommended to utilize a variety of communication channels. Hiring a pickup truck with a PA system to broadcast information across different wards can significantly enhance outreach. Additionally, leveraging digital platforms like social media, community radio, and text messaging can help reach a wider audience and ensure that more people are informed about the exercise.
- Advance Notification and Public Engagement: Implementing a strategy for earlier and more proactive notification can improve attendance. By ensuring that information about the public participation exercise is disseminated well in advance through multiple channels, community members will have more opportunities to be informed and participate.
- ✓ By addressing these recommendations, future public participation exercises can achieve higher engagement levels and more effectively gather input from the community.

1.4 Observations, Challenges, and Recommendations

1.4.1 Observations

The role of communication officers in bridging this gap was also observed to be hampered by inadequate resources. The officers did not have access to data bundles or airtime, which are essential for updating and engaging with the community effectively. This lack of resources significantly impacted the efficiency of communication and feedback collection during the exercise.

1.4.2 Challenges

The challenges observed during the public participation exercise were multifaceted:

- Technical officers: No technical officer from different departments that attended, hence some questions could go unanswered

- Limited Public Awareness: Many community members were not aware of the public participation exercise due to the reliance on newspaper advertisements. This method failed to reach a broader audience, leading to poor attendance and engagement.
- Inefficient Notification Methods: The current approach to notifying the public was insufficient. Relying solely on newspaper ads does not accommodate those who may not have regular access to newspapers or who are not reached by this method.

1.4.3 Recommendations

To address the observed issues and improve future public participation exercises, the following recommendations are suggested:

- Technical officers from different departments should attend this exercise in the ward. This will help to answer some questions that the department is supposed to answer
- Broader and More Inclusive Notification Methods: To increase public awareness and participation, it is recommended to utilize a variety of communication channels. Hiring a pickup truck with a PA system to broadcast information across different wards can significantly enhance outreach. Additionally, leveraging digital platforms like social media, community radio, and text messaging can help reach a wider audience and ensure that more people are informed about the exercise.
- Advance Notification and Public Engagement: Implementing a strategy for earlier and more proactive notification can improve attendance. By ensuring that information about the public participation exercise is disseminated well in advance through multiple channels, community members will have more opportunities to be informed and participate.

- ✓ By addressing these recommendations, future public participation exercises can achieve higher engagement levels and more effectively gather input from the community.

1.3 Closing Session

Demanding for accountability; The County hasn't displayed transparency and accountability when discharging its duties this was brought about by Bernard Onkoba. The North Kitutu chief ,Mr Duke Miinda gave the final remarks by appreciating the citizens for playing their role in public participation by contributing on the Annual Development Plan 2025/2026 and asking them to continue doing so in other programs for their own benefit. A closing prayer was given by one of the participants, Salome Mogire.

1.4 Observations, Challenges and Recommendations

1.4.1 Observations

Need to conduct civic education particularly in what to do with the budget process, so as mwananchi can get a know how on what's expected at a particular time.

Officers ought to come out clear and explain to the public on what is an Annual Development Plan (ADP) and on how it's arrived at,so as to make a difference with Country Integrated Development Plan (CIDP)

Facilitators to always keep time.

1.4.2 Challenges.

A number of projects are incomplete; A case where the Water project in the market is done as complete by on the ground , it's not functional.

Limited copies of projects prospectus

1.4.3 Recommendations.

Always highlight complete projects in the ward and supply copies evenly.

1.3 Closing Session

The meeting came to an end with a word of prayer from Nemwel Rioba who also thanked the secretariat on behalf of the attendees.

1.4 Observations, Challenges and Recommendations

1.4.1 Observations

- The turnout was somehow not encouraging
- The venue was not an ideal place for accessibility and geographically viable for attendees to turn in large numbers.
- In future a centre like is ideal place to encourage members of the public to turn in large numbers.
- The members enjoyed and satisfied with the information provided during the session both orally and materially.

Members of the public want to see the county ministers, chief officers and area MCA being present during the exercise to catch the reality on the ground.

1.4.2 Challenges

Earlier communication about the exercise with attendees suggesting that on top of the radio, social media kind of awareness the county should use public address on top of vehicles moving around market centres to inform the public.

Provision of more copies to public to enable them interrogates the document well thus creating room for proper discussion.

1.4.3 Recommendations.

- Do invest in public awareness campaign for the public to understand how important the public participation in terms of development is.
- Provide more materials during the pp session.
- Encouraging more to attend the exercise by devolving sessions to village level.
- Do a follow up on the issues raised by the public to avoid future confrontations during the implementation of the budget.

1.3 Closing Session

The Exercise ended at 3Pm with the Closing remarks from the Ward admin Momanyi Nyaboke Edith who thanked Members of the Public for attending the session. Thomas Nyaribo one of the members of the Public prayed as the meeting ended.

1.4 Observations, Challenges, and Recommendations

1.4.1 Observations

The role of communication officers in bridging this gap was also observed to be hampered by inadequate resources. The officers did not have access to data bundles or airtime, which are essential for updating and engaging with the community effectively. This lack of resources significantly impacted the efficiency of communication and feedback collection during the exercise.

1.4.2 Challenges

The challenges observed during the public participation exercise were multifaceted:

- Limited Public Awareness: Many community members were not aware of the public participation exercise due to the reliance on newspaper advertisements. This method failed to reach a broader audience, leading to poor attendance and engagement.
- Inefficient Notification Methods: The current approach to notifying the public was insufficient. Relying solely on newspapers ads did not accommodate those who may not have regular access to newspapers or who are not reached by this method.

1.4.3 Recommendations

To address the observed issues and improve future public participation exercises, the following recommendations are suggested:

- Broader and More Inclusive Notification Methods: To increase public awareness and participation, it is recommended to utilize a variety of communication channels. Hiring a pickup truck with a PA system to broadcast information across different wards can significantly enhance outreach. Additionally, leveraging digital platforms like social media, community radio, and text messaging can help reach a wider audience and ensure that more people are informed about the exercise.
- Advance Notification and Public Engagement: Implementing a strategy for earlier and more proactive notification can improve attendance. By ensuring that information about the public participation exercise is disseminated well in advance through multiple channels, community members will have more opportunities to be informed and participate.

- By addressing these recommendations, future public participation exercises can achieve higher engagement levels and more effectively gather input from the community.
